Greetings from your Member of Parliament!

A very happy new year to all! This is my sixth newsletter to the people of Kelana Jaya. My team and I will endeavour to issue one every six months to update you on our work and progress as your Parliamentarian. For this year end 2015/new year 2016 issue, I will disclose my office’s 2015 accounts.

I am happy to report that I have attended every single day of Parliament in the last six months. I gave seven primary speeches in Parliament and took part in numerous interjections and debates. The primary achievement of this office is the coordinating and preparation of the Pakatan Harapan Budget 2016. In terms of performance, as a first term Member of Parliament (MP), I am making good and steady progress.

At the start of my term in 2013, despite winning the second highest PKR vote in Malaysia (YB Rafizi Ramli got the highest in PKR), I was placed in the furthest seat of the backbench in Parliament. Seating arrangements in Parliament are primarily based on political patronage. For being an independent minded technocrat, I was “rewarded” the very last seat in Parliament. This posed a major practical challenge. Being seated furthest away from the Speaker means that I would not be afforded decent opportunity to speak up for Kelana Jayans in Parliament.

However, I took this challenge in stride and decided to work much harder. My team worked harder too. I prepared my speeches in advance, putting in facts, and minimising rhetoric. I rehearsed and refined my delivery. My team and I invested in research and data. I gave press statements and pursued issues rigorously. I briefed senior MPs on complex financial issues. My team and I coordinated and prepared the Pakatan Harapan budget. I even coordinated several MPs on human rights bills when no MP was willing to do so.

In the recent October/Budget session, due to the formation of Pakatan Harapan, the seating arrangements in Parliament were reshuffled. I was accorded a seat in the middle of Parliament, sitting amongst the 2nd and 3rd term MPs. I am happy to report that I am still the same independent minded technocrat, unwilling to partake in political patronage, and that I let my work and service speak for itself.
National Political Issues

This year, we have seen a dramatic roll back on our already fragile Malaysian democracy. Words cannot express how odious the National Security Council Act (NSC) bill is. Words too cannot describe the farce that is unfolding on the 1MDB scandal. There is a complete and utter redundancy of courage from all Barisan Nasional MPs on the simple and straightforward matter of the RM2.6 billion. The Malaysian Parliament has been completely neutered by certain people in power. Parliament is now being used as a tool to create an autocracy.

Outside the halls of Parliament, we are witnessing untouchable thugs run freely, provoking racial discords. We are also witnessing a steady rise in religious intolerance. The merger between UMNO and PAS may become a reality within the next six months and this will have tremendous overall implications to the Malaysian political landscape and a direct challenge to the Selangor government.

It is true that PM Najib has recently successfully consolidated power to himself. Despite the RM2.6 billion problem and a massive drop in his popularity, he has played a perfect political game in the last six months. Despite the odds, he managed to strengthen his grip on UMNO and also the civil service. He managed to destroy the Opposition’s unity with Anwar in jail and the courting of some opposition leaders. With the NSC Act, he will have powers beyond the Constitution.

His strategies may make Machiavelli proud, but his gain has a heavy cost. Ultimately the socio-political cost will be borne by the rakyat. Politically, Malaysia’s democracy is now entering its darkest chapter in recent history.

National Economic Issues

My fellow Kelana Jayans, a severe economic storm is gathering. We have to act fast and decisively. We have to take actions that are within our control by tackling governance and corruption issues. In 2015, we have seen a dramatic slowdown in consumer confidence due to a high introductory rate of 6% for GST. This in turn has hurt business activities. Then the 1MDB scandal exploded and evaporated investor confidence, causing capital flight and the Ringgit to devalue. The GST and devaluation brought inflationary pressures and cost of basic household goods went up and up. Only the falling oil prices is staving off a runaway inflation. However as a net oil and gas exporter, falling oil prices is actually a negative factor for Malaysia.

Being a very heavy borrower, we may fail to roll over our bonds and even risk a default. If that happens, it will be catastrophic for the Malaysian economy.

This current warm winter and OPEC’s game of brinkmanship, means that oil prices will remain low and we will face a fiscal crisis in 2016. We could also be punished by a lower sovereign rating.

What does all these mean to the rakyat? Expect high prices of goods to continue. Expect wages to be stagnant and even loss of jobs. Expect a slowdown in the banking, oil and gas, housing and construction sectors. Note that household debts are at an all-time high of 88% of GDP, so expect higher non-performing loans and bankruptcies. Expect the government to cut social services such as education and health care. All very bad news.

But can we expect the UMNO BN government to clean up and curb abuses of power and corruption? Unfortunately, being in the frontline and watching how these people operate, I am very pessimistic on that happening under our RM2.6 billion PM, Najib Razak.

Community Front

I say this in every newsletter; YB Hannah Yeoh is an angel and the best ever ADUN one can get. In the last six months, I have also become more familiar with my constituents both in Subang Jaya and Seri Setia.

I am particularly impressed by the community leaders of JKP Zone 3; on the ground these guys are really dedicated and hardworking. Their fantastic service to the community means that my office is able to concentrate more on national and Parliamentary issues.

We have a long list of community works and social services in the last six months, and this report highlights a very small sample.

Lastly, I wish to thank both my ADUNS, YB Hannah Yeoh and YB Nik Nazmi for their dedicated services to the people of Kelana Jaya. I also wish to thank all the councillors and JKP members too.

Despite all the doom and gloom, I wish all Kelana Jayans a very good year ahead. Your Member of Parliament will continue to fight for your rights and make Malaysia a better and fairer place for all.

Yours sincerely,
PARLIAMENTARY SESSIONS UPDATE

The third and final parliamentary session for the year was held from the 19th of October to the 3rd of December 2015. The first session for 2016 will commence in March.

Pakatan Harapan Alternative Budget for Malaysia 2016: Averting a Crisis

Pakatan Harapan’s base philosophy is the Social Market Economy model, which is predominantly used in Nordic and Germanic countries. However, we are mindful of incorporating Asian and Islamic elements and influences within.

Pakatan Harapan proposes a disciplined approach towards the national budget and broadly speaking we do not recommend pump priming for 2016. Instead our focus will be on human capital development and pursuit of savings from anti corruption measures. We worked heavily on fiscal projections and also on policy positions. We also have a special section that deals with policy ideas to avert a looming economic crisis.

We launched the Pakatan Harapan Alternative Budget 2016 on the 21st of October after 8 long weeks of research, analysing, number crunching, formatting, illustrating, and writing with my office staff and interns. I want to thank all the members and interns who worked hard on the project. Particularly I want to thank Eric Lee, Koh Wyhow, and Nadirah Sharif, members of my office who had put in great effort to produce the report.

The Trans-Pacific Partnership Agreement

I am against the Trans-Pacific Partnership Agreement (TPPA) for many reasons, but primarily on competitive and sovereignty issues. I believe in Keynesian/social market economy model and as such a government must lead but allow the market to operate within the overall national strategy and social goals.

Developed countries that now push for TPPA had all previously benefited from market protectionism. Now that they are developed, they sing a different tune of “free market” and now want us to compete with them without protectionism.

Some may say that the TPPA is a form of “tough love”. But you can’t pit an ant against an elephant and say “may the best man win.” All industrialised countries in the world today built their market dominance on basic protectionism. Now that they have reached a dominant state, they now speak of “free trade” to increase and cement their global dominance.

We will come back to Parliament in 2016 at the end January, to debate the TPPA.
The National Security Council Bill
Mark the 3rd of December 2015 as the day we see the end of our already fragile democracy. On that day, the National Security Council (NSC) Bill, which gives Prime Minister Najib Razak unfettered powers to declare certain areas as security areas, was tabled and rammed through Parliament.

The debates were serious and Pakatan Harapan MPs were piling on our arguments in waves. We were highlighting two key arguments.

First, the Federal Constitution provides the Yang Di-Pertuan Agong, not the PM the powers to declare emergency and command the army. But if passed, this Act, will allow the PM to supersede the powers of the Agong and direct the armed forces.

Second, the powers are actually given solely to the PM, because the council gives him the sole power to make regulations to give effect to the Act.

Despite our efforts, we lost the vote 74 to Barisan Nasional’s 107.

At times we seem to be stuck in a Kafka novel. I am angry and tired. But I am not giving up. My colleagues from Pakatan Harapan are not giving up. We may not be able to stop the passing of draconian laws but we are going to continue to give our all to fight these laws.

The 1MDB-DuSable Mystery
I started looking into DuSable and 1MDB since April 2014 when the two entered into a joint venture to develop a solar power plant in Kedah, as reported by The Star. A quick search will reveal that DuSable is very loosely connected to United States President Barack Obama.

Soon after, 1MDB and DuSable released a joint statement insisting that they don’t have a joint venture agreement on the solar project in Kedah, and that they have somehow decided in a joint venture of sorts. While I appreciate the joint statement issued by 1MDB-DuSable, I was expecting a reply from the Prime Minister since the matter was for him to reply to Parliament.

What agreement or deal did the parties conclude? Why is 1MDB-DuSable trying their level best to technically justify the Prime Minister’s written reply to my Parliamentary question, which did not even mention any “joint venture agreement” in the very first place?
MEDIA RELEASES
DURING THE END OF 2015

The following are excerpts of several speeches and press statements I have done in the past 6 months of 2015.

“Internally... it now appears that UMNO, as a political party, is stuck and does not have the courage to remove a very unpopular leader. That the party is beholden to and continues to prop up Najib is an astounding declaration.

“... This also means that the patronage system started and used by Dr Mahathir so skilfully, is now the biggest problem within UMNO. When the centre that is UMNO can no longer hold, things will fall apart.”

− “1MDB and its Implications” speech delivered at the University of Sydney on the 7th of September 2015

“What [the Opposition is] going to do [if we win] is go for the low-hanging fruit... You try and clean up democracy in Malaysia, put in place free and fair elections, allow the press to be free, make sure that the MPs are well paid so that you cut out this dependency on money which will corrupt the administration, and you make sure the Prime Minister serves only two terms maximum.

... So get that out and what I expect is that among 1.3 million Malaysians [in foreign countries], we should be able to attract maybe 100,000 back in the first two years.

− The Foreign Correspondents’ Club, Hong Kong on the 6th of July 2015

“Under the Intellectual Property Chapter, Internet Service Providers (ISPs) have been extended the role of “internet police”. Here’s how: the TPPA provision requires Malaysia to provide legal incentives for ISPs to expeditiously remove content deemed as copyrighted material. Under current Malaysian Copyright law, ISPs are not required to remove or disable access to the infringing material unless they receive notification from copyright owners.

“The TPPA has rewritten the rules of the internet... completely to the advantage of corporations.”

− Press Statement on internet freedom with Dr. Hatta Ramli of AMANAH on the 24th of November 2015
COMMUNITY PROJECTS

Community projects make up a big part of our service. As the office of the Member of Parliament for Kelana Jaya, it is important that we continue to engage the community at large and provide social support to the most needy.

Angsana Free Medical Camp

On the 9th of August, we organised the USJ 1 Angsana free medical camp. YB Hannah joined my event, and for once my office returned the favour of organising an event in Subang Jaya.

The camp started slowly at around 8.30 a.m. so Tim, Amir, Mr. Phang, and I went around the flats with a loudhailer each to drum up the local residents.

When the program ended at 3.00 p.m., we have broken all previous medical camp records.

The medical camp was made possible with the support of Community Excel Services, World of Life, and Save Ones Sight Mission. We served a whopping 360 residents with free medical checkup and free medications. Thank you to the doctors, the pharmacists, the medical students, and the volunteers. Congratulations and a very big thank you to all!

I am especially proud of my volunteers corp, led by Mr. Leong, Mr. Ho, Mr. Phang, and Wyhow who got everything organised and done! It was also very nice to see some of my former interns, Ying Ning, WWW, Ashley, Nick, MX, Ann Charlotte, and Jia Hui, helping on that day.

Officiating the Ladang Glenmarie Kindergarten

On the 7th of August, we officiated the Ladang Glenmarie kindergarten which is run by YWCA. My friend, William Arul, is a donor for the kindergarten renovation. In conjunction with the opening, we also held a free medical camp with Community Excel, Word of Life, and Save Ones Sight missions for the residents of Glenmarie.

Many thanks to my volunteers, Leong and Ho, the doctors, medical students, and YWCA for organising the event.
Desa Mentari Survey with Sunway University Students

On the 3rd of October, about 70 business administration students from Sunway University assisted my office and interns to do a complete socio-economic data survey of Desa Mentari. About 2 months prior, we had a trial run and completed the survey of Block 1. Subsequently, we completed another 7 blocks, essentially Block 2 to Block 8.

I also took the opportunity to visit 4 of my constituents who were in severe health crisis. This is a common pattern of urban poverty; extremely poor health. I met a 61 year old diabetic lady who has a gangrenous foot but refused treatment. Another lady of 55 years old is partially blind and immobile. A 45 year old man with crippling and deformed gout in his ankle, wrists, and fingers. I also met a woman who has withered legs.

The survey was essential to enable my office to better understand my poorest constituents. It is extremely frustrating that my office has had no viable data from both the Federal and Selangor State government to work with. Many thanks to the Annie from Sunway University for organising the students.

IJM Bhd CSR Project

The 5th of December 2015 is a busy day in Kelana Jaya. IJM Bhd had chosen to do their CSR activities this year in Desa Menteri, Kampung Lindungan, and Desa Ria. All three are urban poverty areas in my constituency.

IJM sent a team of 500 persons along with their CEO and senior managers. They cleaned up a large part of the common areas and repaired three playgrounds. On behalf of my constituents, I wish to thank IJM and all volunteers again for their fantastic CSR work. I also want to thank Mr. Leong, Mr. Ho, and Amir for a good job organising the event with IJM.

When I began my term as Member of Parliament for Kelana Jaya in 2013, I made a conscious decision to dedicate the bulk of my office allocation and resources to my urban poor constituents. Due to limited funds, our programs are confined to welfare aid, education and health camps. We do not have the financial means to carry out any construction or repair works. Therefore when IJM stepped up and agreed to carry out repair works, we were genuinely overjoyed by the good news.

Our collaboration with IJM Bhd did not begin today. Two years ago, we worked together on a very small but meaningful project to repair all the broken staircases in the Desa Ria flats, which were extremely dangerous safety hazards for young children. The repair works were conducted on time and within budget.

We believe that our relationship with IJM is built on the principles of accountability, transparency, and professionalism and based on the same, we hope that IJM Berhad will continue to support the underprivileged in Kelana Jaya with future projects.
WELFARE AND COMMUNITY HANDOUTS

As recession looms, the poor of Kelana Jaya continue to suffer from an ever-growing financial burden. Our office occasionally provides monetary aid in attempt to ease their troubles. Below are some of the pictures of the welfare recipients at the end of 2015.

I would like to thank Anita, Sami, Sister Stella, Ustaz Zul, Ravi and Prakash for their graciously helping our office in identifying the neediest of residents. I would also like to extend my appreciation to Peter Chong and YB Sivarasa Rasiah’s office for their invaluable contribution.

OFFICE EVENTS
OF PUSAT KHIDMAT KELANA JAYA

Here are some of the events the office held together these past six months of 2015.

P104 Star Wars Fundraiser

We had our Star Wars Fundraising event on the 21st of December! It was amazing; almost everyone showed up, all those who came in costume were impressive, and the mood was quite festive. There was even a booth selling real fighting lightsabers, courtesy of AC Lightsabers. A million thanks to all those who supported the event!

I would also like to extend special thanks to my staff and volunteers. Special thanks to the heroic efforts of Mr Leong and Amir in making this event a success. May the Force be with you all!

Farewell to Tim and Gillian

The 28th of August happened to be the last day for my first and original staff, Timothy Kang. I want to thank Tim for being the rock in my office, managing all the staff and interns the last two years. Tim will be joining BFM as a trainee producer.

The 31st of December was also the last day of Gillian Gan, my research officer, in our office. She is a great researcher and is well liked by her colleagues and Parliamentarians from both divide. The fact that Kak Wan, the Opposition Leader wanted to hire her is testament to her skills and abilities. Despite the offer, Gillian decided to stick with my office, and so ended her tour of duty.

Working on relatively low pay despite good qualifications is a hardship. My office is a non profit and as such it is unfair to retain Tim and Gillian on low pay.

Both have served Malaysia, the Kelana Jaya constituency and democracy. It is now time for them to pursue something for themselves. We will miss Tim and Gillian and wish them the very best in all their future endeavours.
CARISSA HOW

“My internship at YB Wong Chen’s office has truly exceeded all my expectations from the very get-go. YB Wong Chen’s focus of helping to train the younger generation, with the help of an incredibly supportive and open staff is something I feel that other offices could model after, from my own personal experience.

“I’m very grateful to have been given the chance to partake in various community works and even learn many principles that I can carry through to my future career in law; whatever that may be. In all, it was an experience that I will never forget and would happily do all over again if ever given the chance.”

ALYCIA TAN

“Throughout my one-month internship with YB Wong Chen, I realized that one cannot simply dream of a better Malaysia, but must actively work towards building it. For one, I learned that Malaysians (especially the young generation) need to constantly equip themselves with knowledge which would be beneficial for nation-building in order to actually make a change in the nation. However, such head knowledge would not suffice; having witnessed the way YB Wong Chen and his team attended to various constituents (most of whom were poor), I realised that change begins with having a genuine heart to serve the people.

“I ended my internship, feeling inspired to continue pursuing my Law degree, with hopes that it would be a platform for me to serve the country in the near future”

ABIGAIL NIMBALKER

“Interning in this office was truly eye-opening. Coming from a place where I was not aware of how things worked in the legislative branch of our country, I learned so much and gained valuable experiences along the way. Being able to be part of the researching work before debates on the proposed bills of our country made me feel like I was being part of something important, being part of a solution.

“Interning in this office is not just all about research though, it also includes work dealing with public complaints and welfare which is interesting, seeing people of different backgrounds and problems, seeking a solution from the office. Interning in a Member of Parliament’s office is a really cool experience, especially this one, where if you get a break, you might just be able to play table tennis, Politiko or even Cards Against Humanity.”
WE NEED INTERNS!

THE STAFF
OF PUSAT KHIDMAT KELANA JAYA

Introducing the youths of Malaysia supporting YB Wong Chen in his battle for a better tomorrow.

GILLIAN GAN

Gillian graduated from her degrees in International Studies and Law from University of Sydney, fought the tide of brain drain, and made the move back to Malaysia. Uncertain about her future, she decided to delve into rediscovering her country through an experience in public service. Gillian worked as an intern for two months before being offered a position as Research Officer. Since then, she has had the opportunity to sit in on Parliamentary meetings, work with the Leader of the Opposition, and engage in urban poor issues.

While she has left the office at the end of December 2015, Gillian will endeavour to continue the uphill battle for better freedoms for Malaysians.

AMIR HAMZAH

Coming from a background in Sociology, Amir completed his Master’s degree at King’s College, London in Cultural & Creative Industries. Amir is perhaps the most unusual recruit to set foot into office. Prior to signing up as an intern, Amir believed his talents and skillset were best suited for either showbiz or sensational journalism. It took YB Wong Chen himself to persuade Amir into joining the office. Amir has been tasked primarily in dealing with constituency related issues, especially in the low-cost housing flats of Desa Mentari, although he also does his fair share of Parliamentary work.

Amir believes that his job has been nothing short of an adventure. Be it shaving heads in front of Parliament or spending a night in Desa Mentari on an immersion exercise, Amir is not one to shy away from any adventure and always smiles in the face of adversity. Though initially unsure of his place and purpose, as Operations Officer, Amir is a welcome addition to the team.

NADIRAH SHARIF

Nadirah is a law graduate from Cardiff University and had just completed her Malaysian Bar Qualifying Examination when she first met YB Wong Chen and his team at the Angsana free medical camp while working as a volunteer. Intrigued and still uncertain about a profession in law, Nadirah decided to join the office as an intern to explore alternative career options.

During her internship, Nadirah has had the chance to work with the Opposition’s 2016 Alternative Budget team, contribute to research on the Trans Pacific Partnership Agreement, and assist in various urban poor issues. After two and a half months, she was offered a position as Research Officer.
